

WELCOME TO LYTHAM GREEN DRIVE GOLF CLUB

Founded in 1913 and registered as "Lytham Golf Club Ltd," the club first opened with a match on Saturday 3rd May, between the Captain Mr James Wallace and the President and Landlord Mr J T Clifton, which was played over 9 holes. The course then became 18 holes in early 1914.

Measuring at 6309 yards, the course is not particularly long, but it is a demanding yet enjoyable test of your golfing skills.

The course is set in mature parkland and was designed by renowned course architect, Dr Alister Mackenzie, who was the original designer of such courses as Augusta, Royal Melbourne and Cypress Point.

Lytham Green Drive was used as a final qualifying course for the 1974, 1979 and 1988 British Open Championships.

Our Half-Way House is always stocked with a range of hot and cold beverages and quick snacks to prepare you for the tougher back nine.

Lytham Green Drive has a reputation as probably the friendliest and most sociable golf club on the Fylde. This reputation is gained over many years by feedback from visitors and guests alike.

You can be assured that a warm welcome and friendly atmosphere awaits you before and after the perfect round of golf.
